The Animal-Human Health Knowledge Connection

Course Description: “This course will create awareness of the roles of veterinary personnel and the numerous connections between human and animal health. It covers zoonotic diseases, highlights information sharing between veterinary personnel, human clinicians and public health, and introduces free and subscription based animal health resources through demonstrations and case study-based activities. Participants from any type of library will explore high-quality sources of animal health information and apply vocabulary and strategies for its efficient retrieval. Conversations with veterinarians will help participants explore partnering with veterinary personnel to improve the health of the millions of people who live or work with animals.”
