Surveys Made Easy
Course Description

This class consists of basic information about surveys, the kinds of questions to ask, and how to ask them. It also includes a section on how to use SurveyMonkey software to design a survey, to send it out, and to get results that can be easily interpreted. Outcomes anticipated are that participants will have a basic understanding of survey construction and usage, they will be able to select the types of questions needed to obtain the desired information, they will become familiar with the survey software SurveyMonkey, and they will design a basic survey with the software. Participants will be asked to come to the class with a survey project in mind.

CLASS SIZE LIMITED TO 30.

Dolores Judkins is head of Research and Reference Services at the Oregon Health & Science University Library in Portland, OR. She has also served OHSU as head of the Dental Library, Consumer Health Librarian, Web Manager and Librarian for the Center for Women's Health. Her experiences, since receiving her MLS from the University of Oregon, include serving as a Peace Corps librarian in Honduras where she started the first public library in the country, and working in public, special, and hospital libraries. She is currently MLA Chapter Representative for the Pacific Northwest Chapter.
